Yale-Princeton Straggle of To-Morrow Mitchell on Dempery-Sullivan's Rere-Ross's Novel Challenge-Base ball Malarica

. A. Brooks, Harvard, '87, will probably the fortunate gentleman to preside over e football scramble at the Polo Grounds to-This is the annual meeting of the orrow. This is the annual it is expected ale and Princeton teams and it is expected o call out an exhibition of enthusiasm which rill, for the moment, cause the best renembered flush of baseball excitement on the ame grounds to pale into insignificance. All rinceton and all Yale will get there, on foot nd by coach, and will bring its lady-loves ecked out in the most tavishing way with the colors of their particularly admired colegians. Both teams are primed to win and heir friends are expecting everything of hem. So the game must be a great one.

The news that John L. Sullivan is getting trong again and is coming to New York makes another topic, or rather swakens an id subject for discussion and dispute in nuglistic circles. Kilrain's treatment and he cries of the crowd at Philadelphia are vidence that the Boston big tellow is not by ny means out of the regard of the men incrested in his line of athletic work. Will he e able now to do something to justify this teeping of faith in Philadelphia and to restablish himself elsewhere?

Mitchell's plain address about Dempsey nakes another fresh breeze among the sporting fraternity. It certainly does not lack in sonfidence of expression, and it seems business. A second shought, however, suggests that the terms may have been purposely put in just such shape that Dempsey, as a man, cannot think of accepting them, while the Englishman saves himself by remarking that Dempsey, being out of his class, it would be folly for him to think of making a prize-ring match and endangering his freedom in this country.

So Toff Wall agrees to accommodate the ambitious Jack Fogarty, of Philadelphia. He will go in at 150 pounds, for £500 a side, but wants the fight within 500 miles of Lon-

Wallace Ross is out with a novel challenge. He wants to arrange for a six days' race in the roadsculler against any long distance roller skater in America, for $1,000 to $2,500 a side. Wallace has the true spirit of a king

There remains to be seen what the Brotherhood of Ball-Players will do about that new salary schedule adopted by the League. Individual kicking is already plentiful and vigorous. Will the Brotherhood make a united kick? Time and the way in which the new schedule is treated by the managers will tell.
A saving clause for the players for the coming year is that which restricts the operation of the new regulation to contracts made after Dec. 15. There are those who say that the schedule is only a sop thrown to struggling managements and will sasily and quietly be dodged by the clubs which can still afford to put in the gitt edge.
The division of players into classes from A to E and salaries from $2,500 to $1,500 will make a delicate task for somebody on a committee.

News comes that Harvard forfeits its Thanksgiving Day championship football game to Yale and invites the latter team to play an exhibition game that day.

One of the coins is a two-mark silver piece. It corresponds in value to our half-dollar, but is not so large.

On the obverse a good head of the late Emperor is seen. The head is often mistaken for that of the Grand Duke of Baden. Around the border of the coin are the words. "Friedrich, Deutche Kaiser, Koenig V. Preussen." On the reverse is the German coat-of-arms.

The coin dealer also has a number of twenty-mark gold pieces. They correspond in value to the American five-dollar piece.

These coins were bought up by collectors before they could be put into circulation, and they now command quite a premium.

The two-mark pieces bring $2 each and the twenty-mark pieces sell for $20. Quite a number have already been sent back to Germany to army officers who were unable to obtain the coveted mementoes of their deceased ruler in their own country.

deep a mystery of the thing, the man was going to saw down the old tree and was doing it gradually, so it would not tumble down to the damper of passers-by.

"What can there be in a sight like that to draw such a crowd of men?" the reporter asked a middle-aged man, who was eagerly watching the operation.

"Well, city people like to see anything that looks like the country," replied the man.

"Turn a jack-rabbit loose on this piece of grass and see how many will stop to look at it. It would draw as big a crowd as if a man were to drop dead in the street."

Passing on the reporter met a cop, with warm, carrotty side whiskers and mustache. He said to the policeman:

"Is there anything remarkable about that old tree that they are cutting down?"

"No," said the boy in gray, "only it is seventy-five years old and has grown up with the town."

"Who planted it?"
